

Sustainable Business Network, Green Restaurant Association and Fair Food Present:

SustainaFood Supply Chain Seminar

When: Monday, November 30th 2009 2:00 – 5:00pm (TBC)

Where: Feast Your Eyes Catering Event Venue, Front and Palmer Streets Philadelphia, PA 19122

Presented by The Sustainable Business Network of Greater Philadelphia, The Green Restaurant Association and Fair Food, the SustainaFood Supply Chain Seminar is the ultimate Sustainable Resource event for the local Philadelphia-area restaurant, catering and food industries.

The half-day event will start with Keynote speaker, Adam Palmer, who is the Philadelphia Chapter Leader of the Green Restaurant Association and owner of The Pita Pit (a quick-serve, Certified Green restaurant).

Following Adam's address a panel discussion, moderated by Lindsay Gilmour - chef, cooking instructor, and owner of Organic Planet Handcrafted Foods- will take place focusing on stand-out examples of what it takes to retool your business to be 'green' and 'buy local', a cooperative business model for sharing resources and cutting costs, proven methods to reduce your energy use and your environmental impact, expert advice on commercial reuse, recycling and composting, all tricks of the trade that lead to a more sustainable business model.

Panelists include:

Adam Palmer, the Pita Pit and Green Restaurant Association

Ann Karlen, Executive Director of Fair Food

Gary Giberson, Chef/Owner of Sustainable Fare/Lawrenceville School

Angie Vendetti and Jill Fink, Mugshots Coffee Shops and Independence Coffee Cooperative

After the panel discussion, guests are free to browse through vendor tables and make meaningful connections through networking. Vendors will be ranging from compostable serve ware suppliers to recycled kitchen building materials and a variety of other supply chain resources providing additional information and contacts. Cocktails and light, local fare will be included in ticket price.
